

Flora Workshop 1

I honestly can't think of a nicer way to spend an afternoon than hanging out with lovely people who all share a love of flowers — and want to learn how to show them off at their best! That's exactly what our very first floral design workshop turned out to be.

Diana Sharpe invited everyone to bring along a few treasures from their own gardens plus a bowl to display them in. Naturally, Diana H and I got a bit carried away and showed up with enough greenery to make at least five arrangements each 🌿 🌿 🌿.

Diana kicked things off with an easy-to-follow intro on the basics: design principles, handy tools, and the different types of floral arrangements. She showed us how she puts an arrangement together. So Simple right! She then set us loose to experiment. She's such a patient, encouraging teacher and guided us through finessing our creations. I've no doubt that, with a bit more practice, we'll be turning out some pretty fabulous displays! The first photo is Diana S's creation.

The photos below are Wendy's, Karen's, Diana H's and mine.
